

Tuesday, May 1, 2007 8:32 pm

You've heard of brushless, you've heard of no-touch. Heard of Waterless?

Spring is here, and a young New Englander's thoughts turn towards...washing the crud off the car. And New Hampshire native, Portsmouth resident, and eco-entrepreneur James Dudra wants you to use less water, especially when washing your car. James owns Eco Touch, which makes and markets the Eco Touch Waterless Car Wash + Polish. Eco Touch is non-toxic, biodegradable, and petroleum-free. Save water, eliminate toxic runoff, enjoy a clean car, and support a local business. Good deal.

Obama announces energy plan at UNH

Step It Up on the Seacoast

Remember Mom's clothesline?

NRGetic reviews: "Big Coal"

Post Archives

Climate Impact (40)

Conservation (10)

Energy (41)

NH and Seacoast Area (35)

Peak Oil (3)

Reviews (2)